

Trading Analysis according to patterns

The moment for selling the action, it is when you understand and catch the same pattern which is repeating itself consecutively.

The following pattern is going to be, more or less, very similar.

If that action value keeps going higher, in terms of money, then you will know when it is the right moment to sell that action you previously purchased.

Besides doing trading-analysis on your own. You may create an application using programming to make it more dynamically and automatically.